Universal Studios in Talks to Launch First Indoor Park in India

India may soon welcome one of the world's leading entertainment giants, as Universal Studios is in advanced discussions with Bharti Real Estate to establish its first indoor amusement park in the country. The proposed venue is set to be part of a massive 3-million-square-foot retail development near Delhi's Indira Gandhi International Airport, scheduled to open by mid-2027. Universal Studios, known for its world-renowned theme parks in the United States, Japan, Singapore, and China, has been exploring opportunities to expand into untapped markets. India, with its growing urban population and rising demand for experiential entertainment, offers a promising landscape. If finalised, the entry of Universal Studios would be a significant development for India's entertainment industry. It would bring a new level of sophistication and global appeal to the indoor amusement park segment, especially within the context of premium malls and mixed-use developments.

New design for Taraporewala Aquarium to be unveiled soon

MUMBAI: The Taraporewala Aquarium, once a jewel of Mumbai's waterfront and now a fading icon, will be reborn as a modern, multi-story complex – home to more than just exotic fish. A final design will be chosen soon, but, broadly, here's the plan: The new, 12-storey building will house an aquarium floor measuring 6,500 sq m and main tank with the capacity of 3.5 million litres of water. It will also include a restaurant, office space for the state fisheries department, private offices that will be rented and parking space for 140 vehicles.
