Delhi scraps police clearance mandate for hotels, pools and gaming zones

In a recent move, the Delhi government has eliminated the long-standing mandate that compelled companies in the hospitality and entertainment industries to acquire a No Objection Certificate (NOC) or licence from Delhi Police, all as part of a significant regulatory revamp. This is a massive change in the way the checks and balances as well as functions of enterprises including hotels, restaurants, guest homes, motels, discotheques, auditoriums, swimming pools, amusement parks, and video game parlours are governed. All in all, it is soon anticipated that the action will simplify corporate processes, cut down on bureaucracy, and free up police resources. The police body, however, has reservations of their own around matters of law and order which is their duty around these spaces.
