Sky Jumper set to open a new trampoline park in Jammu this month.

Sky Jumper, an Indian indoor entertainment brand, will open a new trampoline park in Jammu this month. The new entertainment centre will feature three entertainment elements: a trampoline arena, a laser tag arena and a soft play area, as well as having a café and party room within the venue. According to Sky Jumper, the new location has good access, as well as plenty of footfall in the area, including a local school with over 2,000 students just 800m away. It also said that it almost decided against the chosen location after they discovered that what they thought was a shopping centre next to the venue was actually a warehouse. Sky Jumper was launched in 2017 and aims to have over 30 locations across India by the end of 2025.

Etihad Arena, the UAE's largest indoor multipurpose venue on Yas Bay Waterfront, is quietly evolving into a leading destination for immersive wellness experiences. Known for hosting global superstars and major sports events, the venue is expanding its horizons to include climate-controlled obstacle races, fitness expos, and indoor adventure parks. This shift is part of a wider vision by Miral to transform Yas Island into a year-round hub for sport, leisure, and tourism. By investing in adaptable infrastructure, the island is shifting away from seasonal programming and embracing health-focused, experience-driven attractions. The transformation is exemplified by the launch of the Spartan 'City' Race.
