Huge entertainment city planned for India

A 140,000sq.m entertainment space is under construction in Kerala, India. Set between the two tourist areas of Wayanad and Kozhikode, Landmark Entertainment City will feature a number of attractions for both families and thrill-seekers. The plans show an amusement park and FECs set alongside themed shopping and hospitality venues. It will include roller coasters and slides, as well as a well-stocked arcade. Biltrax media reports that there will be VR theatres, offering immersive experiences and live events for children. The project is currently in the excavation stage, with a planned opening date of next year.

New adventure park for Indian forest

Plans for an outdoor adventure park in the Indian state of Andhra Pradesh have been given the go-ahead by local officials. Located on the road between PeddaDornala and Srisailam, the park is designed to attract tourists and nature lovers, as well as pilgrims visiting the nearby Srisailam temple. Attractions including a zipline, bungee jump, cycling route, zorbing and trampolines are already under construction. It will be built by the local forest department, which has already constructed two other similar parks nearby. The New Indian Express reports that forest divisional commander, Viswesvara Rao, expects the park to be completed within two months.

Universal Eyeing New Theme Park in U.K.

U.S.-based Universal, with its theme parks in places like Los Angeles, Orlando and Beijing, now has its sights set on the United Kingdom. Daily Star reports the company has acquired 500 acres of land near Bedford with an option to buy 65 more. They're aiming to build "one of the greatest theme parks in the world" and vowing to build the biggest in Europe, which would be a direct competitor of Disneyland Paris. The Bedford site will take some six years to build and is due to employ 8,000 people. In addition to the theme park, a CityWalk area with shops and dining is also planned.

Students Can Create a Theme Park

SARATOGA SPRINGS — Saratoga Arts is hosting a Roller Coaster Camp, presented by The Innovation Center at Saratoga, for students ages 12 to 15. Working in small teams, students will learn the science behind roller coasters and then use Roblox to create their dream coaster as part of a theme park. The camp runs from July 8 to 12. Registration includes four days of in-class exploration using physics, math, and computers; the incorporation of artistic components as students learn to theme their coasters and parks.
