AMC to invite fresh bids for Jaldhara water park operations

The civic body on Wednesday rejected the controversial proposal to allot the operation and maintenance contract of Jaldhara water park in Kankaria to Superstar Amusement Park Pvt Ltd. The Ahmedabad Municipal Corporation (AMC) had recently floated a tender to invite bids for the operation and maintenance of the water park for a period of 15 years.

According to the sources, the proposal mentioned Rs 35 lakh as rental but did not mention anything about the property tax to be paid. The new proposal, which was placed before AMC's heritage, cultural and recreational committee on Wednesday, had suggested waiving property tax for Jaldhara Water Park's operator Superstar Amusement Park Pvt Ltd. However, giving property tax exemption is the state government's right and is extended to properties that are of national or state importance.

Sources said that the AMC has received two letters from private contractors who have offered Rs 50 lakh as rent for operating and maintaining the water park, which is spread over 10,194 square metres.

India's gaming industry must play a multiplayer game

India's ministry of electronics and information technology (MeitY) has announced regulations for the online gaming industry. This industry has been on the precipice of big-time success, but was bound by lack of regulatory clarity. From evolving self-regulatory structures to ensuring adequate measures for consumer protection, these rules have struck the right balance. Indian regulation has historically been Orwellian in its approach; it has been preventive, rather than facilitative. This is a welcome departure.

The opportunities: Online gaming presents India a rare opportunity to take a moonshot at global leadership of emerging technologies. Gaming is a gateway to frontier technologies like AR, VR, Web3, digital assets, and more. These technologies will find their use cases first in this industry before they go elsewhere.

Inspiring new branch to show modern side of Palace Museum

A latest good news is that the Palace Museum will have a brand new branch in the northern part of Beijing by 2025, the centenary of the establishment of the Palace Museum. The construction of the new building had started in December 2022. Completed in 1420 during China's Ming Dynasty (1368-1644), the Forbidden City was the place where emperors held grand ceremonies, conducted state affairs, and lived throughout the Ming and Qing (1644-1911) dynasties. After China's feudalistic regime was overthrown, the last emperor moved out of the palace, which was then turned into the museum in 1925. Covering an area of more than 100 hectares, it is the largest ancient building complex in China and the biggest museum of ancient culture. According to reports, the museum houses 1.86 million cultural relics, but only fewer than 10,000 pieces are on display at any one time. So it is good to know that once the new site is completed, it will display 20,000 to 30,000 cultural relics every year.

Disney Parks all over the globe use huge amounts of materials and resources every day to accommodate the wild number of passionate visitors entering its gates and living in the Disney "bubble" for any length of time. With that, Disney Parks are taking steps to be more sustainable, and Disneyland Paris has just laid out its initiatives to help.

Disneyland Paris has been working with the non-profit organization SapoCycle to recycle used bars of soap from its hotel rooms and are redistributing to those in need across France. Over the last year, Disneyland Paris' hotels collected more than 2.5 tons of soap for recycling and has redistributed soap to roughly 5,600 households. Another step Disneyland Paris is making in the recycling realm is taking worn or damaged costumes and recycling them into insulating wire or felt. The goal here for the theme park is to recycle 50,000 costume pieces annually.
